

Knowledge Test

By Rachel Givens

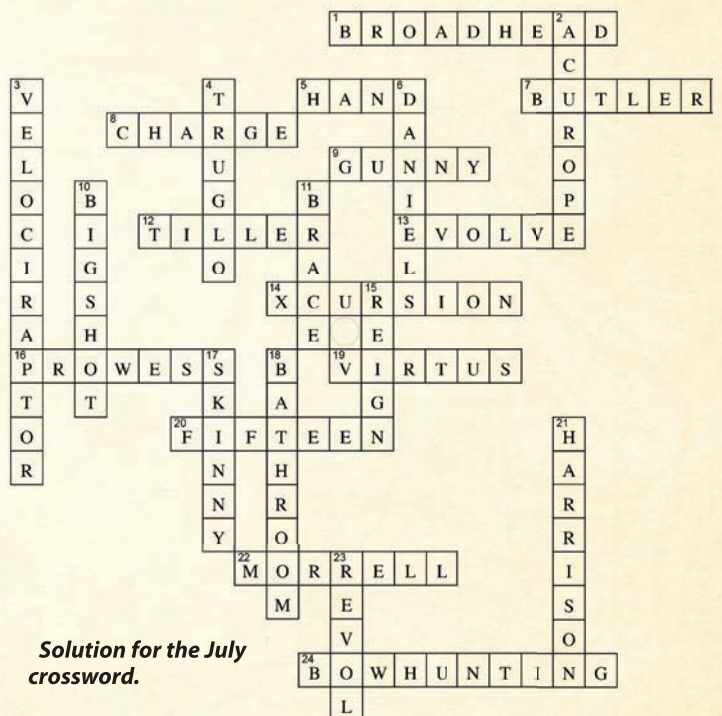

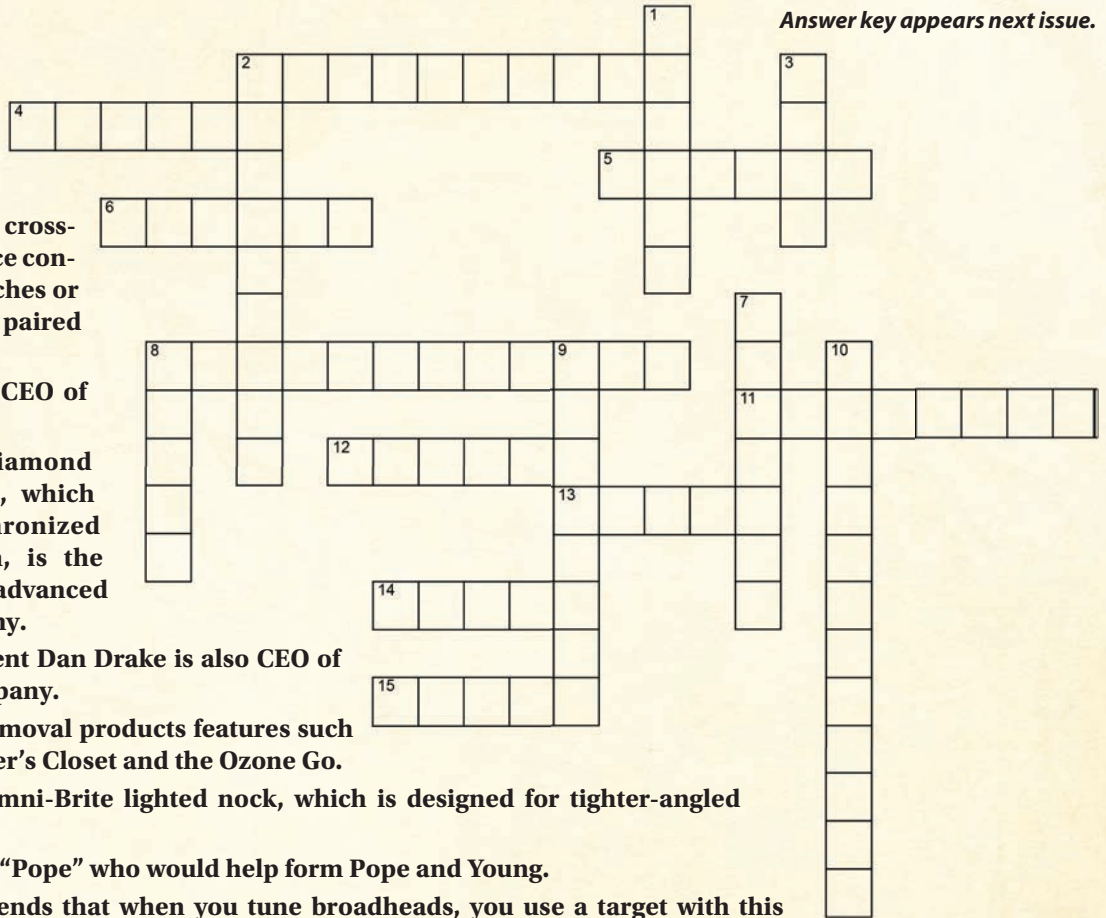

Answer key appears next issue.

Across:

2. This Excalibur broadhead made for crossbows is said to produce consistent groups of 4 inches or less at 40 yards when paired with Firebolt arrows.
4. The last name of the CEO of USA Archery.
5. According to Diamond Archery, this model, which features a Synchronized Binary Cam System, is the most technologically advanced bow from the company.
6. Scent Crusher President Dan Drake is also CEO of this distributing company.
8. This brand of scent removal products features such products as the Hunter's Closet and the Ozone Go.
11. The maker of the Omni-Brite lighted nock, which is designed for tighter-angled crossbow strings.
12. The first name of the "Pope" who would help form Pope and Young.
13. Larry Wise recommends that when you tune broadheads, you use a target with this many spots on it.
14. Scent Crusher products generate this substance, a derivative of oxygen, in order to kill odor.
15. John Kasun's Business Brief emphasizes the importance of these, as said by Zig Ziglar.

Down:

1. The last name of the CEO of Parker Bows.
2. Larry Wise's column this issue revolves around tuning this piece of equipment.
3. If you are using an arrow shaft made of this material, the Clum family suggests making the arrows yourself.
7. This crossbow arrow from Beman uses Certain Shot Technology to let you know what kind of hit you made on an animal based on the blood collected on the shaft.
8. When tuning a broadhead, it is important to make sure the point is aligned straight with this arrow component, with no wobble.
9. This "LX" model from Obsession is available in six draw weights from 30-70 pounds and is designed for the female bowhunter.
10. The city that will host the 2018 ATA Trade Show.

Solution for the July crossword.